Assignment Shooting a Silhouette

Summary A good silhouette photo is always eye catching because it so clearly defines the subject while at the same time bringing out the rich colors in the background - usually a sky. The problem is that our DSLRs and camera phones usually can't handle the bright backgrounds that render our subjects in deep black. So it's off to Manual mode we go and then possibly to editing software for a bit of image refinement. For this assignment, shoot an image with the subject in silhouette and a nice background to make the subject really stand out. See the references for How To below:
